WHO IS IJRD?

The mission of IJRD is to use science to improve lives, communities, and institutions by developing and researching innovations that reduce unnecessary reliance on the criminal justice system and by offering solutions that produce equity and prosperity across race, socioeconomic class, and behavioral health status.

The Institute for Justice Research & Development's team of experts is housed in the College of Social Work at Florida State University and is led by Dr. Carrie Pettus-Davis, one of the nation’s leading experts in behavioral health and criminal justice.

IJRD is a team of passionate innovators and social scientists. Through creativity and research, we are re-envisioning a country with a dramatically reduced need for the criminal justice system. Whether you find us in prison, on the Senate floor, or researching in the community, you will find us confronting challenges and offering data-driven solutions to make a difference in the lives of others. We are the translators who convert research into actionable toolkits. We stand against quick fixes and empty promises that do not result in enduring change. We are the thought leaders that bring together the greatest minds across the sciences to build equitable solutions that elevate the capacity of individuals and communities to thrive.

IJRD DRIVES CHANGE BY:

- Researching ways to achieve equity across the criminal justice system from an individual’s first contact with law enforcement to their release from incarceration.
- Collaborating with national networks of criminal justice professionals including law enforcement, corrections, prosecutors, community providers, and justice-system impacted individuals.
- Rapidly disseminating research findings to policymakers, criminal justice stakeholders, and the public to ensure that our data-driven solutions change policy and practice in real time.
- Creating and delivering state-of-the-art and scalable service and treatment models in criminal justice and community-based settings.
- Training current and future professionals.

IJRD’S GOALS BY 2025:

- Mobilize researchers in 25 states to derive locally-driven solutions.
- Build actionable research standards for examining effectiveness of criminal justice reforms.
- Drive awareness of data-driven solutions for criminal justice reform.

2018–2020 Hosted Events

IJRD hosted an Open House event on April 18, 2019 featuring Secretary of Corrections, Mark Inch as the keynote speaker.

IJRD co-hosted two Reentry symposia in Tallahassee, Florida designed to promote collaborations across local universities, community colleges, and reentry service providers.

IJRD hosted the narrative spoken word event, Transforming Criminal Justice for the 21st Century, on June 27, 2019.

IJRD co-hosted a joint press conference with the Florida Sheriff’s Association to announce the Resiliency Behind the Badge training designed to help law enforcement officers to recognize the impact of their work and connect to support services when needed.

IJRD virtually convened the Prosecution Research Network on July 13-14, 2020 with partners at the Equitas Project (an initiative of Mental Health Colorado). The 2020 Prosecution Research Network Summit provided an opportunity for leaders and decision-makers in prosecution from every region of the country to identify research and policy strategies to improve health, reduce incarceration, and increase national safety, prosperity, and well-being.

IJRD co-hosted an event with the Public Interest Law Center bringing together Social Work and College of Law graduate students to discuss bail reform and pre-trial detention.

IJRD hosted our first All-Team Event February 5-6, 2020 in Atlanta, Georgia. We plan to hold the event again virtually in February, 2020.
In 2019, we formed two advisory boards at IJRD to enhance our research:

The 9-member National Scientific Advisory Committee shapes and guides the science we generate and disseminate. All committee members have expertise conducting behavioral health and criminal justice research and work with us to assist with overall strategic research guidance, advise on technical aspects of the science and scientific integrity, help to expand activities in research, capacity building, and policy outreach, and facilitate research priority setting.

The 10-member Community Advisory Board maximizes the impact of our work at IJRD by ensuring we are relevant, accessible, and equitable. All board members have lived experience of the criminal justice system and work with us to review data collection strategies and materials, enhance intervention content and implementation strategies, generate strategies to foster connection with justice-involved individuals, and identify policy gaps and guide research priority setting.

2018–2020 POST–MASTER’S FELLOWSHIP

We created an innovative Post-Master’s Fellowship to provide training to new Master of Social Work graduates at the intersection of social work and criminal justice. We have brought on 18 fellows to work primarily on the 5-Key Model project in Indiana, Ohio, and South Carolina.

One IJRD Law and Policy Fellow is co-located at the Academy for Justice at the Arizona State University College of Law.

The purpose of this Fellowship position is to bridge legal and social work scholarship with practice and policy in communities, amplifying data-driven solutions for criminal justice reform.
Since we opened our doors in 2018, we have served as a “talent pipeline” for students at all levels.

• We have hosted 24 Bachelor’s students pursuing degrees in English, Communication and Information Sciences, Criminology, Family & Child Sciences, Psychology, Statistics, and Social Work.

• We have employed 19 Master’s students as Research Technicians who assist with communications and research implementation. These students were pursuing graduate degrees in Social Work, Criminal Justice, and Public Administration.

• IJRD has placed 16 students in field work or practicum placements.

• Six doctoral students work with IJRD and assist in all aspects of IJRD’s research projects.

• Our 2 Doctoral Affiliates who serve as the lead researcher and author of their own projects using IJRD data.

Seven IJRD Master’s level Research Technicians were promoted: two were promoted to Graduate Research Assistants, two now work with IJRD as Doctoral students, one joined us a Post-Master’s Fellow, and two were promoted to full-time IJRD staff.

Additionally, two Post-Master’s Fellows were promoted to full-time IJRD staff.
In December 2020, IJRD launched several new trainings to catalyze the translation of our state-of-the-art practices into workplace innovations. Learn about our trainings below and contact us to customize professional trainings and clinical services to meet your needs.

Resiliency Behind the Badge is an innovative web-based interactive training designed to help law enforcement officers recognize physical and mental indicators of traumatic stress. It includes techniques to manage and respond to stress both on and off the job. Trainees also learn when to seek help from a professional, as well as how to identify potential symptoms in their peers to direct them to help, when necessary.

This first-of-its-kind training was featured in a press conference with Florida House Speaker Chris Sprowls, Walton County Sheriff Michael Adkinson Jr, past president of the Florida Sheriffs Association and Carrie Pettus-Davis, IJRD Founding Executive Director on December 17, 2020. Click here to read media coverage of the event!

How to Build Funding, Evaluation, & an Evidence-Base for Non-Profits

This exciting video-based training series designed to help non-profit/NGO administrators and staff to amplify their organization’s mission by identifying potential funding sources, preparing grant applications, designing new programs, conducting program evaluations, collecting high-quality data, and building an evidence-base for your programs.

This training series was created in response to the most frequent requests IJRD has received from non-profit leaders, helping them to amplify their missions and identify data-driven solutions for their organization and clients. Each training series brings research concepts to trainees in plain, jargon-free language, ensuring that trainees with no formal research experience can grasp and apply the concepts. IJRD team members have participated in 8 Congressional Briefings and National Working Groups on criminal justice reform and smart decarceration.

Watch the Congressional Briefings here:

- Social Work and the Future of Policing, June 30, 2020
- Undoing Racism: Eliminating Debilitating Criminal Penalties, December 2, 2020

IJRD has received broad national media attention for our data-driven solutions to criminal justice reform.

Media coverage since we opened our doors in 2018:

- IJRD has been featured in media 87 times
- 14 Podcasts and Interviews highlight the work of IJRD and the IJRD team
- Carrie Pettus-Davis has participated in 4 Press Conferences with state governors and other leaders to highlight the impact of IJRD’s work nationally.
2018–2020 FINANCIAL SUPPORT

We have received $14,904,853 in grants and contracts since January 2018 to support our research.

- We have received $8,512,903 from private foundations.
- We have been awarded $6,209,950 in public grants.
- We have earned $182,000 in contracts.

Overall, we have applied for $33,180,653 in grant funding; we also submitted a $100 million proposal to the MacArthur 100&Change Challenge.

2018–2020 SOCIAL MEDIA, CONTACTS & NEWSLETTERS

IJRD maintains Facebook, Twitter, YouTube, and LinkedIn pages.

- We have 2,846 followers across our IJRD accounts.
- IJRD has 1,549 individuals on an external distribution list. These individuals receive emails newsletters, and reports from IJRD.
- We have sent out 11 Internal Newsletters and 4 External Newsletters.
Support for IJRD’s research is crucial to enacting our mission to use science to improve lives, communities, and institutions by developing and researching innovations that reduce unnecessary reliance on the criminal justice system and by offering solutions that produce equity and prosperity across race, socioeconomic class, and behavioral health status.

Learn how you can join us as a Pathfinder, Luminary, or Proclaimer.

We launched the Day 1 Fundraising Campaign on November 13, 2019 to create more success stories for justice-involved individuals on Day 1 of their criminal justice system contact.
